My Bachelor's degree is in business, finance from California State University, Fresno, where I graduated Summa Cum Laude. I'm from a family of property developers and real estate planners. In the early 1900's, my great grandpa bought 30 acres of land in rural California, which he and my grandparents developed into a little town called Prather. This town is where I was raised, and where my grandparents lived their whole lives. As you can imagine, I have a soft spot for small towns and community development.

I run a successful Real Estate Business with my husband Mike, where we focus on being a resource for our community. We give back to our local community as much as we can, and love planning community events. I feel my knowledge of real estate and property development, and commitment to serve my community qualify me to be on the council.

I find that in most things in life, goodness is found in the middle of the extremes. I value fiscal responsibility AND investing in our community to make it a desired place for everyone to live, and I don't see these values as opposing forces.
